

ATLAS CONSULTING™

Atlas Consulting offers a full range of custom software development and consulting services. From idea to design to deployment, our proven consulting and development methodology enables us to consistently deliver powerful, scalable software systems on time and on budget. Since 1989, we have successfully completed numerous projects, from targeted problem solving to large-scale application development, for a wide array of demanding clients.

Our development expertise includes a strong background in relational database and object-oriented system design and core competency in developing .NET enabled web services applications that are database interoperable and system independent. Additionally, we are widely recognized as leaders in the InterSystems Cache™ database technology.

Atlas is highly skilled in designing data communications architectures. We have had extensive experience developing and deploying sophisticated applications across large-scale networks whether client-hosted, or ASP, employing dedicated networks, the Internet and/or VPN technologies. Clients utilize our custom applications for the transmission and management of mission critical data between centralized servers and remote nodes. Beyond application design and deployment, our clients leverage our enterprise expertise and world-class customer support and maintenance infrastructure to service and manage their post-install environment.

Leveraging extensive subject matter expertise in communications, messaging, application design and workflow automation, Atlas Consulting specializes in high performance custom software applications that enhance the way you work.

With our depth of knowledge and expertise we can provide cost-effective solutions to even the most complex problems. Find out why so many companies run mission-critical applications powered by Atlas™.

About Atlas Consulting

Atlas Consulting offers a full range of custom software development and support services. Our experience and track record of successful software development speaks for itself. From business process and solution analysis to software development, we are your one stop shop.

Contact Us Today:

Tel: +1 (800) 333-0700

E-mail: sales@atlasconsultingdivision.com